Oct. 14, 2020 1:04 AM	Kiran Kokate	In view of small holder farmers who are below poverty line and belonging to vulnerable areas like drought prone , efforts were made to adopt watershed management approach with participatory mode. Further, meticulous crop planning was followed and emphasis was given on crops which requires less water . It was successful model and within about a decade majority of the small holders are above poverty line . This is the example of Hivarebajar and Ralegansidhi villages of Maharashtra, India.
Oct. 14, 2020 4:39 AM	Abdul Aziz Bukero	They need to learn Advance tactics but unfortunately we have did focus on how to create our role in such kind problem
Oct. 14, 2020 5:44 AM	Kiran Kokate	There is need of appropriate leadership at every level including grassroot !
Oct. 14, 2020 5:46 AM	Abdul Aziz Bukero	Off course
Oct. 14, 2020 5:47 AM	Kiruba Krishnaswamy	Thank you Dr. Kiran Kokate - "leadership at every level including grassroots" for good foundation I have some concerns with this question posed- what prevents us from discussing "How to eradicate poverty?"

Oct. 14, 2020 5:56 AM	Kiran Kokate	Yes we can discuss !
Oct. 15, 2020 3:29 AM	Christiam Mendez	What do you think about organic products or specific products? For example the Quinoa, I reseached about Quinoa effect in Peru. In the introduction of this superfood was very good price. Local agricultor community had better price but the global production affect the price. organic product is other possible strategic.
Oct. 15, 2020 3:33 AM	Abdul Aziz Bukero	Ya Organic Food is good idea
